Message from the Chair

Dear Colleagues,

Greetings!!

Wish you all a very Happy New Year 2026!!

I have assumed responsibility of the Chair of IFLA-Government Libraries again in August 2025 after a gap of almost 10 years. I bring with me a passion to publish a newsletter again for our colleagues. This issue is published as an introductory issue and provide you valuable information about IFLA-GOVLIB Section. Government libraries and Librarians are facing one of the most demanding periods of our time. Governments are expected to make fast and evidence-based decisions, maintain information integrity, and communicate with transparency with the citizens. This is no longer a “good to have” responsibility for Government Librarians any more. Rather, it is the backbone of effective governance of any country.

In this issue, we highlighted the work of IFLA and the Government Libraries (GOVLIB) Section. We introduced our officers and members for 2025–2027 and shared updates from Standing Committee meetings. We also highlighted GOVLIB resources, guidelines, annual report and provided insights from WLIC 2025. A featured article on Indian Digital repositories at the Central Secretariat Library is included in this issue. You will also find news and events about IFLA and India’s Rashtriya e-Pustakalaya. In the end, please join for a tribute to Sandra da Conturbia, a former member of GOVLIB.

Our community is growing, our visibility is increasing, and our commitment to government information excellence remains unwavering. I encourage every member to participate actively — contribute, join working groups, and help amplify the essential role of government libraries globally.

Let us continue our efforts to support our colleagues’ informed governments and empowered citizens.

Warm regards,

Sanjay K. Bihani

The new members are co-opted from regions of America, Europe and Sub-Saharan Africa for geographical and regional diversity in the committee. The new members are co-opted for the term 2025-2029.

Earlier, Mr Bihani has contacted all GOVLIB Section members, Regional Division Committees and Regional Offices to circulate the co-option call for getting nominations /EOIs. GOVLIB welcomes the new members and looking forward to work with them.

Standing Committee meetings

The first Standing Committee meeting of the IFLA Government Libraries Section for 2025–2027 term was held online on 9th September 2025. The meeting brought together officers and committee members to set priorities for the new term and to align future activities following WLIC 2025.

The Chair outlined the Section’s strategic direction, highlighting the need to strengthen regional representation, increase overall membership, and improve internal engagement through regular meetings and effective use of Basecamp. Members were informed that the GOVLIB Action Plan 2025–2027 would serve as the primary framework for capacity building, member engagement, and programme development.

A key priority discussed was the planned review and updating of the Guidelines for Libraries of Government Departments, including possible restructuring of chapters and expansion to reflect emerging developments.

Communication strategy was a major focus of the meeting. Basecamp was confirmed as the sole internal communication platform, while external outreach will be strengthened through emails, coordinated use of social media and mailing lists. The creation of an Instagram account was approved, and shared responsibility for social media management was agreed.

Initial discussions were also held on WLIC 2026 in Busan, noting the shorter congress format and the importance of early coordination within Division B.

A second Standing Committee meeting was held online on 14 November 2025. The meeting brought together committee members from multiple regions to review progress, align priorities, and initiate preparations for the 2025–2027 term.

The Chair shared key updates from Division B, the Professional Council, and the Governing Board, highlighting IFLA’s preference for in-person meetings around WLIC, upcoming structural consultations, and the importance of officer participation in digital skills and impact training. Members were also briefed on WLIC 2026 (Busan) and the milestone IFLA 100 Congress in London in 2027.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved without amendment. Significant progress was reported on the co-optation of new Standing Committee members, with strong regional interest received from across Africa, Asia–Oceania, Europe, and the Americas. To strengthen geographical balance, the Chair was authorised to finalise selections.

A major focus of the meeting was the Section Review, a mandatory self-assessment covering achievements of recent years. Members committed to contributing content collaboratively through Basecamp, with a submission deadline of 2 February 2026.

Discussions on collaboration with regional divisions and other professional sections emphasised the need for joint congress session at WLIC 2026. Potential thematic areas included artificial intelligence, policy support, reference services, and accessible library services. A small focus group was formed to advance this work.

The Committee also initiated planning for the GOVLIB Action Plan 2025–2027, prioritising achievable goals such as completion of the section review, co-option, revision of the Guidelines for Libraries of Government Departments, inclusion of new chapters on AI and advocacy, and wider translation of the guidelines.

Under communication strategy, the launch of a GOVLIB newsletter was endorsed, along with renewed engagement on social media platforms. Strengthening internal participation through Basecamp and forming a small communications subgroup is identified as immediate needs.

Additional decisions included reviewing the status of inactive members and introducing recognition initiatives, such as a “GOVLIB Member of the Year”.

GOVLIB Annual Report (2024-25)

by Jonathan Ginn, former Secretary and Interim Chair

Overall, I think it’s fair to say it was a relatively quiet year for the section in terms of events. However, following the cancellation of the 2024 WLIC in Dubai, we did nominate a panellist Greta Braungard, Academic Library Department Chair at the US Army War College to take part in the IFLA 24 Hours of IT event on 28 August 2024, on a Division B panel: “Artificial Intelligence and government, parliamentary and law libraries and official publications: A cross-sector conversation.” I would like to record our thanks to Greta for taking part.

Changes in Committee members

Over the last year there have been a number of changes to the committee outside of the normal election cycle.

I will begin by mentioning Julia Hiltz who became Chair in 2023. Despite her best efforts, various health issues affecting her and her family meant she was unable to continue as Chair. She did plan to step down as Chair and from the committee this August but she brought this forward to May, and after following IFLA processes I took on the role of Chair in an interim capacity for the few months until August, besides continuing as Secretary. I’d like to thank Julia for her contribution to the committee and wish her and her family better health.

I would also like to thank Llarina who has continued in her valuable role as Information Coordinator throughout this time and given me valuable assistance during this time of uncertainty and change, such as taking the minutes for this meeting to allow me to chair it. I’m very pleased that Llarina will be the Section’s Secretary for 2025-27.

As previously noted during the January meeting, Dominic Hartley from the UK retired in September 2024 and also stood down from the Section. Dominic was Secretary from 2021-23.

Brad Hinton who was a long-standing Committee Member stood down in January 2025 as he left his post in the Australian government. I will echo Julia's comments at the time in wishing both Dominic and Brad all the best for the future.

Others who did not seek re-election this year and can be considered to have stood down from the committee include Reka Ramillon- Torhany from Luxembourg, Antonmichele de Tura from Italy, Hyun Ju Kim from South Korea and Ajay Singh from India.

Last but certainly not least Neil Murray from Belgium and the European Parliament will also be leaving the committee this month. Neil was Chair for four years from 2019-23. Although this period coincided with the Covid-19 pandemic and the cancellation or changes to the annual WLIC, nonetheless we did achieve successful events for the WLICs that did happen, namely online in 2021, in Dublin in 2022 and then Rotterdam in 2023. I'm sure I speak on behalf of the entire committee when I wish Neil all the best. Looking at the incoming committee, congratulations to those who are beginning a second term covering 2025-29 – I believe these would be Lisa Massengale from the USA and Saiyed Faheem Ali from India. And of course, we have a considerable intake of new committee members – Paola Banegas from Argentina, Zhang Shuguang from China, Vanessa Whittle from the UK, Ana Mocé from Spain, Deepak Shrivastava from India and Dolores Carungui from the Philippines.

I believe this will be a very strong committee going forward and wish you all the best. Sanjay has considerable experience as a leader within IFLA and not least within Government Libraries. Llarina has been an excellent Information Coordinator since 2023 and I am sure will bring the same enthusiasm to the role of Secretary, and although Deepak is new to the Section I believe he is the right person to take on and continue to develop the communication strategy as Information Coordinator.

Shaping the future of libraries: IFLA strategy and trends

IFLA has launched its Strategy for 2024–2029, guiding the Federation through its centenary in 2027 and towards the end of the UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Developed with input from members and volunteers worldwide, the Strategy reflects the priorities, challenges and aspirations of the global library field.

At its heart is a new vision: Sustainable futures for all through knowledge and information. It focuses on three impact areas:

Impact Area 01: Libraries are connected and energised through vibrant, global professional communities

Impact Area 02 Libraries are recognised, represented and valued as partners

Impact Area 03 Libraries are enabled to deliver meaningful change at all levels

This work is supported by a commitment to futureproofing IFLA, ensuring effective, transparent and innovative governance and partnerships.

The Strategy provides a flexible framework that libraries, associations and partners can adapt for their own planning. It emphasises international collaboration and positions libraries as key actors in supporting their communities.

The IFLA Trend Report 2024 and its follow-up survey “Trends and IFLA” explored how global trends may affect the achievement of the Strategy. Seven key trends were identified: changing knowledge practices, the transformative impact of AI, shifts in trust, growing complexity in skills, uneven digital access, environmental pressures on information systems, and the importance of community connections.

Respondents highlighted the impact of technological change on capacity-building work and noted that trends affect different regions and activities in varied ways. This report serves as a tool for reflection and planning, helping libraries and associations anticipate change and respond effectively.

Both emphasise collaboration, innovation and the role of libraries in promoting sustainable development, digital inclusion and equitable access to knowledge, supporting the field to make informed decisions and deliver meaningful impact worldwide.

Feature article: Central Secretariat Library and Indian Digital Repositories

by Dr Ajit Kumar, Director, Central Secretariat Library, Ministry of Culture, Government of India, New Delhi

The Central Secretariat Library (CSL) under the Ministry of Culture, Government of India, is one of the largest tangible treasures of knowledge next to the National Library, Kolkata, for Indian and foreign document resources. The resources of the Imperial Secretariat Library, Calcutta, which was established in 1891 during the reign of Lord Curzon and was recognised by the Imperial Library Act of 1901, are among the numerous ancient institutions that make up CSL.

The Act stated that

It was intended that it should be a library of reference, a working place for students and a repository of material for the future historians of India, in which, so far as possible, every work written about India at any time can be seen and read.

F.W. Forester, Curator of the Imperial Records Office, assembled about one thousand volumes lying about in the Writer's Building, Calcutta, received under the Press and Registration of Books Act, 1867. The Imperial Library was established on May 11, 1891, and included this collection as well as a number of collections from other secretarial libraries housed in that building. The Home Departments collection, which together with the Imperial Library, was the most significant.

Books formerly belonging to the libraries of East India College, Fort William College and the East India Company Board in London formed part of the collection. When, under the Imperial Library Act, a new Imperial Library was established, the entire collection of the erstwhile Imperial Records Office was not transferred to the new library; rather, a portion of the collection was with the Imperial Secretariat Library, to distinguish it from the Imperial Library, and which continued to function in the Writers' Building.

On 1st April 1948, the library was named the Central Secretariat Library. In 1969 the library was shifted to the newly constructed Shastri Bhawan, housing the Ministry of Education; the 'G' wing of the building was allotted to CSL.

There are 8.48 lakh documents in the library's resources and collection, including books, reports, government publications, and international publications. There is also a section dedicated to rare books with 5,545 titles, the oldest of which was acquired from the Imperial Secretariat Library in 1702. It is located in the 'G' Wing, Shastri Bhawan, New Delhi, with two branches in R.K. Puram Library (Textbook Branch); Tulsi Sadan Library (TSL) – Hindi and Regional Languages Branch.

Indian Digital Repository:

- Gazette of India: The Gazette of India is the official publication of the Government of India that carries the statutory orders and notifications. The Central Secretariat Library has digitised the Gazette from 1950 to 2002, and the data has been uploaded to the Department of Publication for online search for the benefit of the user and general public on Gazette of India website.
- Committee /Commission Reports: The Indian Official Documents (IOD) Section of the Central Secretariat Library has a rich collection of (2827 approx.) reports of different committees and commissions established by the Government of India from pre-independence to post-independence. These resources have been digitised and are available through the Central Secretariat Library digital collection:
- Rare Books: The rare book collection of CSL pertains to the 18th, 19th and early 20th centuries. CSL has a collection of 5545 such books which have been kept in closed access, i.e., the rare book collection in the Area Study Division of the Library. Out of these 5545 rare books, CSL has digitised 5395 rare books. Access these digitized rare books.
- Gyan Bharatam: Gyan Bharatam is a national program to locate, save, digitise, and disseminate manuscripts in the National Digital Repository as living sources of knowledge for future generations. An important step in the preservation, digitalisation, and dissemination of the nation's vast manuscript history is the establishment of the National Digital Repository on February 1, 2025.

Ministry of Culture has organised the Gyan Bharatam International Conference on "Reclaiming India's Knowledge Legacy through Manuscript Heritage" from September 11–13, 2025 with the goal of preserving Indian manuscripts.

During this conference, the Gyan Bharatam Portal (National Digital Repository) was launched.

Rashtriya E-Pustakalaya: India’s national push for digital reading access

Ministry of Education, Government of India has launched Rashtriya e-Pustakalaya (ReP) as a key national digital reading initiative under the National Digital Library of India (NDLI) framework. The initiative reflects India’s strategic commitment to equitable, technology-enabled access to reading and learning resources.

ReP functions as a free, open digital library platform, offering curated e-books across age groups, subjects, and Indian languages. Designed for children, youth, and lifelong learners, the platform is accessible via web and mobile applications, ensuring nationwide reach regardless of physical library infrastructure.

Aligned with the principles of NEP 2020, Rashtriya e-Pustakalaya promotes reading culture, multilingualism, and digital inclusion. The initiative is supported institutionally through collaboration with the National Book Trust (NBT), strengthening content quality, governance, and sustainability.

For the global library community, ReP stands as a scalable model of state-supported digital public library service, demonstrating how national policy, publishing partnerships, and digital platforms can converge to reduce knowledge inequity—particularly in developing and multilingual contexts.

Relevance for IFLA members

- A replicable model for national digital public libraries
- Strong alignment with IFLA’s access, inclusion, and literacy agendas
- Demonstrates policy-driven integration of libraries into digital education ecosystems
